EXPERIENCE

Hobby Lobby, N. Lakeland, Fl. Associate

2017 - 2019

Worked as a stocking, register, freight, designing, merchandising, associate. I worked very well with others and also was known to teach my coworkers who might be ignorant. I also had a lot more pressure on me than even some leads and about the same as some assistant managers being that my father was the District Manager. I also know that the manager (who still resides) would agree.

Hobby Lobby, S. Lakeland Fl. Associate

2019 - 2020

Worked here because this store needed more help. I also was very well known in the stores of the city to be somewhat of a swiss army knife. Being that I was very well oriented with the different roles and responsibilities of the store it became very easy to learn and as all my bosses would say I am very easy to teach. Allowing me to be trusted with the task of assigning and following up on my similar aged peers. Due to them being young and known to slack off.

Dicks Sporting Good, Lakeland, Fl. Footwear Associate

2021 - Current

I believe that this is my most rewarding job being that I get to use my outstanding social skills. Here I am used in a lot of ways. In footwear, register, freight, and order packing. What makes me versatile is that I am able to work in other departments very well, like my own. This is due to me watching and paying attention to others with something new. Also a result of me always asking my manager or peer questions about things and literally voicing I want to be versatile throughout the site. Also known to be extremely good with customers and able to engage them even when I have tasks and still get my work completed correctly, on time, and sometimes early.

2020 - 2020

Changed my major to radiology and worked really hard to maintain a 3.2 gpa after having to leave for financial reasons.

PROJECTS

Remodeling DSG Remodel

While employed at DSG I was hired in the midst of their remodel. I wasn't expected to know a lot being that I was new. However, I was extremely familiar with the product and had been previously well acquainted with literally constructing fixtures. I was originally tasked with doing busy work until I asked and told them that I can take a lot more responsibility. I immediately relieved them from the pressure of having so much pressure to finish building by the deadline. Later on I had a meeting with my managers and lead saying they'd like to thank me and give me more responsibility.

Leadership Hobby Lobby

I was hired in high school but, at a very early stage of my time there I was given a rare role of being an untitled leader. I was known for my high work ethic by my managers. With that I was given a lot of responsibility because my tasks and assignments were completed earlier than they expected. I was new, so I constantly would ask what's next until I learned the flow and life cycle of products and how to make the products more engaging to the customers. Merchandising became something I am quite familiar with even now. While I was there my boss knew that and took advantage of it. I then became responsible for teaching new hires younger or older and also, being a sort of task manager to all. Relieving the pressure of my managers having to be hands on with every intricate process that it took to run the store.
